FINISHED MEASUREMENTS

42 cm final bust and 23 cm height.

This cardigan is inspired by a pattern that was knitted a lot here in Portugal in the 50s and 60s. It reached me through the notes and memories of mothers and grandmothers who were knitters. This is why it's important for me to write this pattern down, which is also a way of preserving this heritage that embellishes so many baby photo albums. This cardigan is knitted sideways, starting at the left front and ending at the right front. It is knitted in short rows, using the two colors in stripes and alternating between garter and stockinette stitch. A fun construction that surprises with its simplicity. At the end, we finish with a small seam on each sleeve.

Note: when you change colors you should crossover the strands, always dropping the color you have just knitted over the color you are going to use.

FINISHING

Sew the sleeves – close the sleeve by sewing the side selvages with mattress stitch from the right side of the fabric. Start sewing at the cuff and work your way up along the sleeve selvages to the armhole. Sew on the buttons on the right front, opposite each of the buttonholes on the left front. Weave in all ends with a tapestry needle. Wash carefully with mild soap. Block garment to final measurements.
